Another detainees to the "disguisers" group

List of detainees of the so-called "disguisers" group has increased to 12 people. They were pretending to be Internal Security Agency (ABW) and Military Counterintelligence Service (SKW) agents. They invoked influences, among others, in the administration of justice and special services. They demanded and accepted financial benefits in return for swinging official matters.

Agents from the Katowice Regional Office of the Central Anticorruption Bureau detained 4 people associated with the so-called "group of disguisers". Persons associated with "disguisers" impersonated officers, inter alia, of ABW and SKW, in exchange for financial benefits they undertook swinging official matters against established entrepreneurs.

This time, agents from Katowice detained former Minister of Justice Andrzej K. (in 2004-2005), his partner from the legal office - Piotr K., Marek S. a businessman from Gdańsk and Jerzy K. a former officer of the Military Information Services. The detainees invoked influences in law enforcement agencies, justice and tax offices. In addition, three of the four detainees (except the lawyer Andrzej K.) are suspected of belonging to an organized criminal group. Pretending to be officers of special services, they committed economic and corruption crimes.

The officers searched the detainees' apartments. They secured evidence that could constitute evidence in the ongoing investigation. Detainees will be brought to the Regional Prosecutor's Office in Katowice, where they will hear charges of invoking influences and participation in an organized criminal group.

This operation is another part of the investigation conducted by the CBA. The bureau previously detained 8 people suspected of impersonating special services officers, paid protection and participation in an organized criminal group.

The case is still ongoing, and the list of persons detained and alleged crimes may be extended.
