47 percent of the respondents assessed the work of the CBA as positive

The latest edition of the Centre for Public Opinion Research (CBOS) survey shows that 47 percent of respondents assess positively the activities of the CBA. This is the best result from all the surveys carried out so far.

CBOS, in a cyclical survey carried out in March and September each year, monitors the opinions of adult Poles about the activities of selected public institutions, including the CBA. The results of the latest edition of the survey show that the Bureau's position is close to this from six months ago, and at the same time is the best from the previous ones, that is from 2007. The CBA is rated higher than, e.g., the Supreme Audit Office, the courts or the prosecutor's office. The CBA is positively assessed by almost half of the respondents - 47%.
